Cole walks free for "time served" after more than three years in jail

Story used Courtesy of Andalusia Star News

After three-and-a-half years in the Covington County Jail, Kanavis Malik Cole walked out of the courthouse in Andalusia a free man last Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 24, and slept with his 6-year-old son in his arms Wednesday night, his attorney said.

KANAVIS MALIK COLE

Cole, age 26, pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor charge of criminally negligent homicide Wednesday. He had been charged with murder and attempted murder in the June 2014 shooting death of Demetrice Lawon Hines, 20 of Opp.

The incident occurred at the Little Harlem Club in Opp, where a second man, James Danshay Edwards, also was injured in the gunfire. Edwards testified Wednesday morning that he was not sure who shot him.

Gary Bradshaw of Enterprise, who defended Cole, said, "We don't know which shot fired inside that club hit that young man, Mr. Hines. The state's witness said he heard eight shots, and only two were from my client."

Bradshaw said Cole pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor charge because he had admitted to firing shots in the building. Cole and his attorney contended that he did so in self defense.

Bradshaw had previously sought immunity for his client under stand your ground. Judge Lex Short denied the request.

Bradshaw also had sought to have Cole's $1.5 million bond reduced. That effort also was unsuccessful.

For the misdemeanor guilty plea entered Wednesday, Cole received the maximum sentence of one year, with credit for time served, according to a release from the DA's office. He also agreed to pay $3,000 in restitution, which goes toward Hines' funeral expenses, Bradshaw said.

"He was elated to walk out of there and go home," Bradshaw said. "If he had had a million, he could have been out on bond all this time."

Bradshaw said he prayed with his client before Cole left the courthouse Wednesday.

"I told him he could go home, and use this to change his life. Or you can go home, throw a party, smoke dope, and end up back in the court system. But you can break that cycle now."

Emergency personnel from Elba responded to the scene of this 2-vehicle wreck Friday afternoon, Jan. 26, at the intersection of the new Hwy. 84 road (203 Bypass) and E. Davis Street near National Security just after 3 p.m. Elba Police said it appeared failure to yield right-of-way was the cause of the collision, which involved a PT Cruiser, driven by Johnny Parvin of Elba, and a Nissan Altima, driven by Tia Sherrise Kelley of Elba. No injuries were reported as a result of the accident. Coffee County EMS and the Elba Fire Department also responded to the scene.

Elba electric bills include credit this month

The City of Elba utility bills this month included a one-time credit, dropping each bill's total to amounts not seen in many, many years.

The bottom line on these bills is correct, however a printing glitch by the computers leaves people confused. The computers did the math correctly but posted the amount of the credit wrong on every bill by the same percentage.

By misplacing the decimal point, a $40.30 credit was printed as a $4.03 credit. When anyone added up the charges and subtracted the "printed" credit, nothing fit. It is only after knowing to change the number - move the decimal point to the right one number (the $4.03 or whatever to $40.30) that the numbers balance.

City Hall phone lines have been alive with questions since the bills hit the mail. City officials posted an explanation on the city's Facebook page but even that confused some consumers even further.

The official "non-answer" reason for the credit on every bill is printed in the block just below the itemized portion of the billing. It reads, "This is a one-time credit on the electric portion of your utility bill from recovery of contractual obligations."

Enterprise man faces child abuse charge in Coffee County incident

An Enterprise man was arrested last Thursday, Jan. 25 on child abuse charges by the Coffee County Sheriff's Office.

Chief Deputy R.W. Whitworth said a 9-month-old baby boy was transported Dec. 8, 2017 to a local hospital due to his inability to crawl, pull up or do normal 9-month-old activities. The baby's left leg was swollen in the femur area.

After examination and x-rays, Whitworth said it was determined the baby's leg was broken. He was transported then to USA Children and Women's Hospital in Mobile, Ala. for further treatment.

The Department of Human Resources and the Coffee County Sheriff's Office were called and an investigation began into this incident.

Last Thursday, Randal Silas, age 21, of Enterprise, was arrested and charged with torture/willful abuse of a child. According to Chief Whitworth, Silas is the boyfriend of the infant's mother.

Silas has been released from the Coffee County Jail on a $15,000 bond.

Coffee County's All-County Honor Band delivers delightful concert from Elba High School auditorium

by Linda Hodge, Editor

Sixty band students from Elba, Zion Chapel, Kinston, and New Brockton came together last week for the Coffee County All-County Honor Band, and this group delivered a delightful concert Thursday evening, Jan. 25, at the Elba High School auditorium.

The band students worked Wednesday and Thursday last week with clinician Dr. Jed Smart, and he directed them during Thursday evening's concert.

"We were able to put this concert together in two days because of the students' talents and the leadership from their directors," Smart said. "I have told the students to not take their directors for granted. You all have something really special here [in the Elba City and Coffee County school systems]."

Dr. Smart is director of bands at Tuscaloosa County High School in Northport, Ala. He holds degrees from the University of Alabama, Troy University, and Boston University.

Bands under his direction have consistently been rated superior, and he serves as a clinician and guest conductor throughout the Southeastern United States.

Smart is a three-time recipient of the National Band Association Citation of Excellence.

"Even if you're on the right track, you'll get run over if you just sit there." – Will Rogers

The Alabama Legislature has officially called for a Constitutional Convention to put term limits on both Houses of the U. S. Congress. There is considerable sentiment throughout the United States to eliminate the career politicians in Washington. The overwhelming vote for the term-limit resolution by the Alabama Legislature does not mean it will happen tomorrow or even any time soon. Alabama and Florida are the only two states with a formal call on record and the U. S. Constitution requires 34 states take this action for it to become a reality. Then in this Constitutional Convention, 38 states must vote in favor of the term limits proposal for it to become a reality. If that happens it is a done deal and Congress has no power to alter the decision.

There are advantages to term limits, but only if it applies to all 50 states. If one or two states pass some sort of law requiring it, and the others do not, then the one or two are at a disadvantage because their lawmakers don't have any seniority, etc. While the new guys from the term limit states are busy learning the ropes, the older mossbacks are hauling off the money.

Now here is a sharp little pin to prick the skin of your state lawmakers. If term limits would be beneficial on the federal level, wouldn't they also be ideal on the state level? We suspect elected lawmakers in some states will not endorse the idea on the federal level because they don't want it to come home to haunt them in their state position.

A number of our readers have noted that throughout the recent cold weather snaps there have been no pictures in The Elba Clipper of the Courthouse Fountain with beautiful icicles hanging from the swans, etc. Well folks the city hall crews got tired of repairing pipes burst from the hard freezes that created the "fountains of ice". They now cut off the pumps that circulate the water through the fountain when the weather reports call for freezing and thus no burst pipes but also no artistic ice sculptures for the cameras. Alas, even common sense has a price.

The flu is running wild all across the United States (well Hawaii is fairing right well so far) and showing no sign of abating. Maybe it was great foresight or just dumb luck but we took the flu shot this year . . . the first one since 1959, or maybe the early '60s. For several years it has been our intention to again take the shot, but . . . shots are not our favorite thing to indulge in but being sick is dreaded even more. We do not make a good patient when suffering from some malady, so it was finally "roll up your sleeve" time. The amazing thing is that the only feeling we sensed was the alcohol soaked cotton pad that cleaned the spot on the arm. The little ole shot needle, in the hands of an expert, went completely unnoticed. Now the experts acknowledge taking the shot is no guarantee of being free of the flu this year but they do assure us the shot will make the virus infection symptoms a bit milder.

We called City Hall inquiring about where the money came from in the rebate on Elba utility bills this month. They decline to answer the question . . . so far. Hmmm - public business, public money, but no public accounting, well that is not the American way. Stay tuned folks, we have not had a good fight in a long time.

Leaked Trump memo may spur Alabama to fund roads

By Todd Stacy,
Alabama Daily News

There are unintentional leaks and then there are intentional leaks. As frustrated as Trump Administration officials may get with the unintentional or unauthorized distribution of sensitive information to the media, they have also been known to use the tactic to their advantage.

When information is leaked to the media on purpose, it usually means someone wants to send a subtle message that advances their goals. This past week, the White House appears to have intentionally leaked a document revealing its plans for a major infrastructure initiative - and the message being sent has big implications for Alabama.

As first reported by Axios' Jonathan Swan <<https://twitter.com/jonathanvswan/status/955532890049261569>>, the Trump Administration's draft "Infrastructure Incentives Initiative" memo <<http://www.aldailynews.com/featured/leaked-trump-memo-may-spur-alabama-infrastructure-effort/>> offers the first glimpse into a highly-anticipated effort to fund road and bridge improvements across the country. For Alabama, the draft plan raises major questions as to how the state will compete for grants without a revenue mechanism to match federal funds.

According to the memo, half of the expected $200 billion federal road appropriation would be distributed through a competitive grant program to states, local governments and other "eligible entities." Various factors would be weighed on applications, including to a minor degree incorporation of new technologies (five percent), pass-thru efficiencies (10 percent) and the contribution to economic development (five percent).

However, a full 70 percent of the grant is weighted toward the applicant's ability to raise their own revenue streams for construction and maintenance. Simply put, the White House wants states and local governments to pony up their own resources to help share the burden for improving the nation's aging infrastructure.

Why might that be a problem for Alabama? Because last year the legislature failed to pass an infrastructure revenue and investment plan that would have given the state a leg up in applying for these Trump road grants.

The bill, sponsored by State Rep. Bill Poole (R-Tuscaloosa), would have incrementally raised Alabama's gas and diesel tax by nine cents a gallon to support a $2.45 billion bond issue to build and repair roads and bridges across the state. While the bill saw widespread support from legislative leadership, the governor, and trade associations during the 2017 regular session, it failed to receive enough votes to clear a procedural hurdle in the House.

After lawmakers expressed dissatisfaction over various details of the plan, House Speaker Mac McCutcheon declared the infrastructure bill "dead" and said it would not come up again in this legislative term. The legislature's reluctance to increase taxes - even a gradual nine cent increase more akin to a user fee - is not likely to abate in an election year. However, Alabama could now find itself at a disadvantage to other states who are leveraging new revenues of their own to match federal funds.

Even without federal money to sweeten the pot, it is widely agreed that the legislature needs to do something about our crumbling infrastructure. Alabama's roads and bridges received a D+ rating on the most recent report card from the American Society of Civil Engineers. Our infrastructure deficiencies affect everything from public safety to economic development, and existing revenues aren't keeping pace with the growing needs.

Speaker McCutcheon told me a legislative working group is running the traps in the hopes of having a viable bill ready to pass by next year. Should Congress pass something soon, the time needed to implement such a new law would give Alabama the opportunity to enact an updated proposal in the 2019 session, the Speaker said.

Even if timing is not an issue, one risk to waiting until next year could be the influx of newly-elected state legislators. A relatively high number of House and Senate members are retiring or seeking different office, meaning many new faces are expected in the State House beginning in 2019. None of them will have been a part of this legislative working group, and some could balk at the prospect of casting one of their first votes to raise a tax.

That brings me back to why I believe this "Infrastructure Investment Incentives" document was intentionally leaked. The White House is subtly telegraphing to states and local governments that if you want federal road money, you have to put some skin in the game. Of course, state leaders have always known that demonstrating the ability to put up matching funds would likely be necessary to access new federal infrastructure appropriations. With the leaked White House memo, they now know just how much the Trump Administration is counting on states to invest monies of their own.

That means whether they get to it this year or next, Republican legislators in Alabama will have the mother of all covers to explain voting to increase the gas tax: President Trump told me to.

CSRA employees assist Coffee County Family Services

Coffee County Family Services Center is the local agency designated to sign-up individuals who are in need of assistance providing Christmas for their children age 0 – 12 through the U. S. Marine Corps Service League Toys for Tots toy drive program.

This year CCFSC signed up 294 families with a total of 647 children.

CSRA encourages employees to volunteer for the causes that matter most to them. Volunteers were needed in many areas and CSRA staff members, Quincey McCoy, Bill Pate, Scott Lowther, Derek Goodrich, Richard Ables and Mark Davis provided much needed assistance in erecting a 10' x 30' canopy used to further assist local residents with food and clothing. This group also provided assistance in many others areas in setting up this event.

"The mission of Coffee County Family Services Center is to strengthen families by working with public and private organizations to efficiently use available resources; thereby, improving the quality of life for children families and communities," said CCFSC executive director Judy Crowley. "We appreciate CSRA working with us to lend support for the U. S. Marines Toys for Tots campaign when it was most needed."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

This letter is intended to be a "pat on the back" for Shaun Hammonds and some of his students who went beyond the call of duty for the recent Coffee County Arts Alliance performance at Elba High School.

The school was closed the day of the event because of the weather, but Mr. Hammonds arrived around 10 a.m. the morning of the performance and was there until after 10 that night. He and his student helpers cleaned the auditorium, helped the sound technician unload and set up equipment, helped the performers with load in and stayed to help reverse both processes.

Mr. Hammonds is involved in so many aspects of our community and is always willing to help. Besides that, he does a super job with our band program.

Warm regards,
Tom Maddox

Republican Women of Coffee County receive national award

The Republican Women of Coffee County (RWCC) received the National Federation of Republican Women (NFRW) Caring for America award for their trauma kits for law enforcement project.

The announcement was made at the NFRW Biennial Convention held in Philadelphia in October. RWCC also received the Diamond Award, which is the highest NFRW honor a club can achieve.

These awards were presented to RWCC members at the Alabama Federation of Republican Women Convention, held in October at the Montgomery Marriott. At that meeting, RWCC was also recognized for Best Newsletter, Best Publicity, and Best Caring for America Project (also for the Trauma Kit project).

In July of 2016, on-duty police officers were killed in Dallas, Baton Rouge, and Kansas. RWCC wanted to show their support of law enforcement officers and decided to provide them with something that could have a positive, ongoing impact on their lives.

When asked what would be most helpful, Enterprise Police Department (EPD) Captain Michael Moore said that trauma kits would be invaluable. In the event an officer is injured in the line of duty, the kits provide them with the tools to perform lifesaving procedures until help can arrive (tourniquets in the kit would be used in the event an officer receives a bullet wound). The EPD already had eight kits, but still needed more so that each police officer and investigator would have one; the Sheriff's Department had none. RWCC joined forces with the Coffee County Republican Committee (CCRC), and they ordered 45 kits, enough to equip both the EPD and the Sheriff's Department. The cost of a trauma kit is $90.

In December, RWCC and CCRC donated five more trauma kits to both the EPD and Sheriff's Department. They have already proven invaluable as an EPD officer used the kit's equipment to render aid to a victim of a gunshot wound.

The Republican Women of Coffee County meet on the third Wednesday of the month at the Enterprise Country Club. Social time begins at 11 am; $12 optional buffet at 11:30; and program at 12 noon. Everyone is invited, but reservations are necessary. Reserve your seat by calling Jan White at 334-494-3763 or email: rwccreservations@gmail.com. For more information on RWCC, visit their Facebook Page or contact Johnna Roberts at 334-406-1318.

First Assembly of God

AWE AND WONDER

February is a special month for my wife Wanda and me because of it being the birth month of Audrey, our first-born. After almost twenty four hours of labor, the doctors decided on a c-section. Sitting in the surgical room at Wanda's head and behind a drape, I was eagerly anticipating meeting our baby. We had decided not to know the gender before birth. So, when we heard the first cry, and Wanda asked "What is it?", all I could say in my awe and wonder was "It's a baby!"

Now, thirty-five years later, I'm still in awe of our Audrey. She is an amazing daughter, wife, and mother. Wanda and I love her more than ever!

The question today is, how are we with Jesus? Do we stand in awe and wonder of him? Does he still amaze us, or have we just gotten used to him? Do we take him for granted?

Let's be sure that, with The Lord, we go far beyond religion to relationship. Then, let's be sure to keep our relationship with him fervent, faithful, and fruitful.

Always be in awe and wonder of Jesus!

Winter Ladies' Bible Study to begin Feb. 5 at First Baptist Church Elba

A Winter Ladies' Bible Study will begin Monday Feb. 5, at 6:30 p.m., at First Baptist Church Elba.

The study will be on Steadfast Love by Lauren Chandler.

There are times when worship overflows effortlessly from a heart full of gratitude and praise. And there are times when God seems far and we feel we have nothing to offer. Throughout it all, God shows us His steadfast love.

Psalm 107 is a call to worship. It reminds us that each season of life is an opportunity to reveal the anchor of our souls.

In this 7-session Bible study, Lauren Chandler uses Psalm 107 to show us how to face both storms and deserts with courage and trust in Jesus, and to discover how tests in our journeys of faith reveal the true condition of our hearts. There is no fear for the one who fears the Lord, the one whose soul is anchored in His steadfast love.

Study books for Steadfast Love may be purchased from Lifeway Bookstore in Dothan, or from Lifeway.com/steadfastlove online. Call Carolyn Hocutt (334-750-4205) if you have any questions.

Seniors at Elba Senior Citizens Center enjoy special music and dancing

Seniors at the Elba Senior Citizens Center enjoyed the music of the Cowpen Creek Band and dancing with the Boll Weevil Dancers from Enterprise last Thursday morning, Jan. 25, in Elba!

This is just one of the many activities the seniors enjoy regularly at the center. As shown in the photos, lots of fun was had by all in attendance.

Contest hopes to “smoke out” Bama’s best ribs

The Alabama Pork Producers hopes to smoke out Bama’s Best Pork Ribs through a contest promoting Alabama farmers’ lip smacking-good product.

The contest, which runs through April 2 on Facebook and Instagram, is searching for a fan-favorite restaurant serving up the tastiest pork ribs Alabama has to offer. A panel of pork-loving judges, including an Alabama pig farmer, will visit the Final Four restaurants in April. The winner will be announced in May to kick off summer grilling season.

Restaurants can range from hometown hidden gems to well-known favorites, but the judges are sure to zero in on this — a flavorful, tender, stick-to-your-ribs product.

The winning restaurant will receive a plaque and $500.

One restaurant will receive a cash prize — and bragging rights — as the People’s Choice Award winner.

Submit nominations through April 2 by commenting on the Federation’s Facebook and Instagram contest posts with the restaurant name and town.

Elba Senior Center gets new “dry erase” tables

The Elba Senior Citizens Center recently received new tables for the seniors to enjoy.

Senior center director Donna Falls said the tables are easier to adjust to different heights for wheelchair accessible, and they all have four sturdy legs.

An accessory the seniors are really excited about is that the table tops are dry erase boards, which will allow for encouraging notes to be written and easily cleaned, etc.

NOTICE:

Coffee County officials announced that beginning Thursday, Feb 1, 2018, County Road 215 will be closed for bridge construction over Shoal Creek. The area will be closed between County Road 217 and County Road 207. This closure will last approximately 3 months.

Several high school student events planned through February at ESCC

Enterprise State Community College has launched its annual Senior Visit season for Spring 2018, with several exciting events scheduled throughout the next couple months across the college and multiple high school campuses.

Nearly 500 seniors from 17 schools throughout the Wiregrass area are scheduled to visit ESCC through February for an ultimate student experience that includes tours, financial aid information, programs, social media challenges, entertainment, and lunch. The visits provide high school students an opportunity to learn everything they need to know about choosing where to go to college, as well as a chance to learn an extensive amount of information about what is offered at ESCC.

“This is a great time for students to connect with Enterprise State Community College and the Alabama Aviation Center on our turf, so that one day this can possibly be their home for cutting-edge, quality, education,” Matt Rodgers, ESCC President, said.

Students register to attend senior visits with their high school guidance counselor. The first of many senior visits was Tuesday, January 23, when students from Daleville and Wicksburg high schools visited ESCC.

Upcoming dates include:

- February 8 - Adult, Ed students and February 12 - Elba - Goshen - Slocomb

In addition to the scheduled senior visits, multiple events in which ESCC will invite high school students on campus or actually visit the high schools with a team of ESCC/AAC faculty and staff are scheduled throughout February.

A program fair, in which ninth, tenth, and 11th graders can visit the college while seniors in the area take the WorkKeys exam, will take place on the Enterprise campus the morning of Wednesday, Feb. 21. Parents will have the opportunity to attend a special “How to Become a Boll Weevil” session, where they, too, will learn the important steps their student will take to become a Boll Weevil, and participate in a parents-only campus tour.

All events scheduled at ESCC are free and open to the public, but registration is required. Register with high school guidance counselor, or call (334) 347-2623 ext. 2235 for more information; or email admissions@esc.edu.

Views From The Pressbox

By Ricky Mularz, Sports Editor

The only thing we know for sure whenever our grandson Lawson comes over for a visit is that he will be hungry. He does eat healthy food and loves crackers with cheese and ham or turkey, but lately has learned how to enjoy such kid-friendly meals as hamburgers, hot dogs and even ketchup sandwiches. The more he comes over the more his diet may stray a little from his Mom's healthy menu.

For what it is worth....

 The Elba Tigers saw their month-long winning streak come to an unexpected end on Saturday night when they blew an 11-point fourth quarter lead in a wild two-point loss to Laurel Hill, Florida. However, the Tigers' nine-game winning streak was enough to give them the regular season area title and the homecourt advantage in the playoffs, and made the team one all area fans talked about when the subject turned to basketball. The loss at home will hopefully wake up the team and make the players realize that each game is a season unto itself, and if it hopes to advance to the region and state tournaments there can be no more off nights. It will be interesting to see just how well the Tigers learned their lessons.

 The Elba Lady Tigers wrapped up their area title with a big win over New Brockton and may very well be a sleeper when the post-season party tips off. The Lady Tigers are much better and much more dangerous than their record indicates, and could make some noise come tournament time, especially with the homecourt advantage in both area and sub-region play. These girls enjoy playing basketball and I won't be surprised if they have a few surprises left up their sleeves.

 The 'Ed Rigby Era' as head football coach at Elba High came to an end last week when the highly successful head coach resigned to apparently become the next head coach at 6A Eufaula. The word had gotten out that Rigby had been interviewed for the high paying post, but most felt an assistant from a successful program in Georgia was the favorite and that Rigby would be back to lead the Tigers into the 1A ranks. That didn't happen; however, and his five-year run at Elba that chalked up over 50 wins and a state championship is now just a line item in the record books. I came to know Coach Rigby very well during his years at Elba and honestly believe he a great man and a great coach, and wish him nothing but success in his future endeavors. He will be missed, but I know we will all keep an eye on his career at Eufaula, or wherever he ends up, and hope he gets another state championship ring.

 A look around the area found teams beginning to peak as the tournament trail gets ready to become traveled. In boy's action, New Brockton and Brantley both appear to be locks to advance to sub-region play, while Kinston has a shot at pulling off an upset or two and is much better than many realize, and Zion Chapel will no doubt battle until the end. Over with the girls, Brantley should make it out of the area without much trouble and has a solid chance at making it to the region tournament, while Kinston could make some noise and make a run at regionals, and the winner of Zion Chapel-New Brockton match-up will also advance. The best is yet to come!

 In closing.... If there was ever any doubt that college sports was a big business that came to an end last week when Alabama and Auburn released its yearly financial figures. Sports at Alabama generated $174.3 million during 2017, with $15.6 million in profits. The football program brought in $108.2 million and showed a profit of $45.9 million, while men's basketball had a profit of $5.1 million. The other sports operated at a net loss of $17.4 million, which leaves no doubt that football pays the bills. One interesting fact was that Coach Nick Saban took home a total of $11.6 million in salary, which was of course the highest salary in the nation. Over at Auburn, its sports generated a total of $147.5 million, with $14.6 million in profits. The biggest revenue producers were ticket sales ($32.9 million) and media ($40 million), while in the expenditures the salaries of the coaches was $24.6 million, which is almost $5 million a year more than the total salaries at Alabama. When financial figures are based in millions, it is big money, and here in Alabama the Crimson Tide and Tigers talk in millions!

Rip New Brockton 66-29

Elba Tigers clinch area title

The Elba Tigers wrapped up the regular season area championship last Friday night with a solid 66-29 win over the New Brockton Gamecocks, at the Elba gym.

The Tigers Jay Jordan poured in nine points in the opening stanza to help Elba jump out to an early 19-8 lead, while Vilee Sams scored 15 points in the second quarter to spark a 27-point explosion as the Tigers went in at intermission with a big 46-22 advantage.

The pace slowed down in the third quarter, but Elba remained in command and outscored the Gamecocks 13-7 to extend its advantage to 59-29 and then blanked the Gamecocks in the final stanza to wrap up the 66-29 win and the area title.

Vilee Sams scored 20 points to lead Elba, while Jay Jordan added 17 and Alex Wright scored 11.

Rigby resigns Elba head football post

The Ed Rigby era as the head football coach at Elba High School came to an unexpected end last Friday morning when the successful Tiger coach announced his resignation.

"I resigned Friday morning and told my players later that afternoon," stated Rigby. "I told them I was stepping away to look at other coaching opportunities, and honestly I just feel like it was the right time for me to go in a different direction."

Rigby was the head coach for the Tigers for five years and in that time became the third winningest coach in the rich history of Elba Tiger football with a 53-12 record. Three of his five teams posted 10 or more wins, and under his guidance Elba advanced to back-to-back state title appearances, winning the school's seventh state championship in 2015.

"The past five years have been awesome for me and my family and Elba is a place we all never forget," added Rigby. "Elba is truly a special place. Everyone in the community loves football and the kids love football. It was a coaches dream to coach at a place like Elba and it will always have a very special place in my heart."

Rigby was announced as the new head football coach and athletic director at Eufaula High School during that school's school board meeting Monday night, Jan. 29th.

The search for Elba's next football coach already is underway, according to reports.

Examination.

Dr. Smart resides in Aliceville, Ala., with his wife and two daughters.

Elba High School hosted the All-County Honor Band, and Elba High School band director Shaun Hammonds said it resulted in an awesome two days for all the band programs involved. He said all the students were well-behaved and very attentive.

"The kids have worked hard the past couple of days, and are looking forward to putting on this concert," Hammonds said prior to the start of Thursday evening's event.

Hammonds said he would be remiss not to thank Elba City Schools superintendent Chris Moseley, and Coffee County Schools superintendent Terry Weeks for their support of this honor band program.

"We could not do it without their support," he said of the two superintendents.

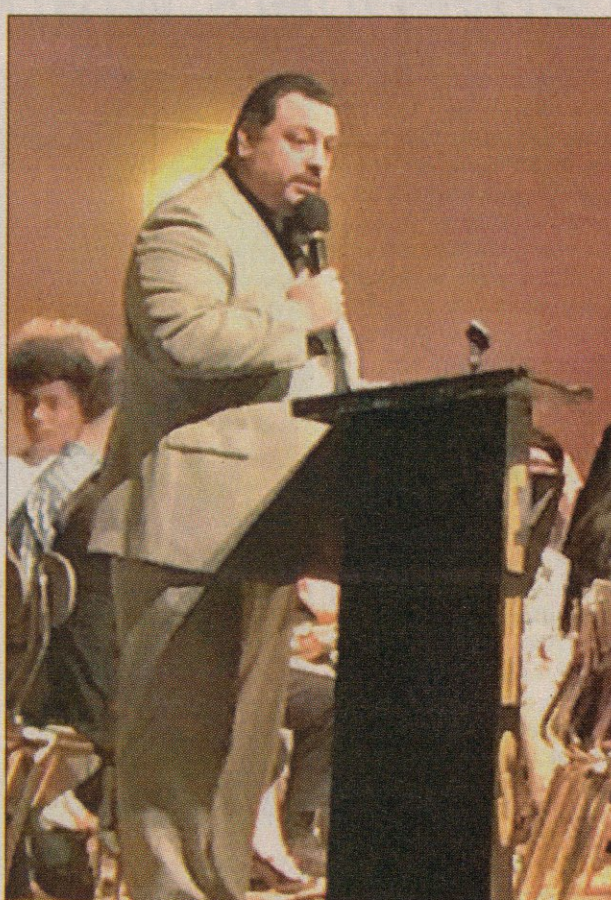

Dr. Smart echoed those sentiments in his remarks by saying, "I want to thank the boards of education for allowing this [joint honor band program]. There are many honor bands around, but you do not always see what you have here."

He said that was a great testament to both school systems for the willingness to work together for the betterment of the students.

Smart also thanked the parents for their commitment to the children and their interest in band. He said it all begins with the parents.

As for his experience in Coffee County last week, Dr. Smart said, "Thank you so much for having me here. Elba is a beautiful community and this is a beautiful facility you have here."

During Thursday evening's concert, the All-County Honor Band performed: American Heritage March by Edmondson; Just a Closer Walk with Thee (arr. By Vinson); Hand Clap (arr. By Murtha); The Falling Rain by Swearingen; and Black Forest Overture by
